What is happiness for human? Have you thought about it?

I think that three conditions are necessary to be happy. First thing is to be peaceful, secondly is to be healthy, and thirdly is to have a challenging work. To work is not only for payment but also to be a helpful person for people and society through work. My hope is that youth in the world learn Japanese here in Nagaoka, where is full of rich nature, and find lifelong friends, teachers and challenging job and spend a happy life. Eishin College will make every effort to support your dreams and hope.

History of Nagaoka

450 years ago, when Japan was the warring states period, Niigata prefecture was called “Echigo no Kuni.” At that time, Kenshin Uesugi who governed the country of Echigo was strong commander of samurai. Everyone feared him as “Dragon of Echigo” who was so strong and was not afraid of losing battle. His battle was for righteousness, not for his own interest. That is to say, he kept fighting throughout his life to help the troubled people. Kanetsugu Naoe who was his vassal learned Kenshin’s thought and fought to protect his citizens. He put the words “Love” on his helmet. That “Love” does not mean “love” to heterosexual meaning, but includes “love” to those with life and to Echigo’s beautiful nature. The Nagaoka clan (now Nagaoka City), which was 300 years after, the end of Edo period, the country became scorched by the civil war and food shortage. Then Nagaoka clan was donated 100 sacks of rice (about 6 tons) from a nearby clan. At that time, Torasaburo Kobayashi who was a feudal warrior of Nagaoka clan didn’t distribute the rice to the citizens as food, but he sold them and made a school with that profit. The words of Torasaburo Kobayashi at that time are left, “If you eat 100 sacks of rice, you will lose them quickly, but if you use them for education, it will be 10,000 and one million sacks tomorrow. Thought that values the righteousness of this righteousness, education is deeply rooted in the hearts of Nagaoka citizens now, though 450 years after then. Tender, considerable heart and delicious rice and vegetables raised in clean air and water are the pride of Nagaoka.
